Evarts and Wise speak at Brooklyn. BROOKLYN, Oct. 29.—Hon. Wm. Evarts made his first and last speech in the present campaign at the Clermont-avenue hotel, Brooklyn, last night, before the clubs of the city. Four thousand people heard the ex-Senator deal with the issues of the campaign. He was dressed in a blue frock coat and wore a blue bow tie. He made no allusion to the fact that he was to be decorated the next day. He showed above the sounding board of the hotel the picture of President Harrison. He showed evident signs of his advanced age and the audience, appreciative of this, at once broke into a hearty round of applause. Despite the fact, however, that during his address to-day there was an almost painful silence, the feeble voice of the old man was clearly to be heard. He began his speech by saying:

"I fear that my zeal, in the great controversy between the two great parties of our great Nation, and the kindness of the Committee and of the citizens of Brooklyn, have over-persuaded me to think that I am qualified to stand on a platform in the presence of the people of Brooklyn. [Applause.] But if I could command the voice and the influence of the great Nation, I would stand on a platform in the whole country that I would not gladly stand on, and more than any other, perhaps, on this platform of Brooklyn."

Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States, their profound sympathy and condonation in his recent affliction and bereavement.

Ex-Governor John B. Wise, of Virginia, said that he would like to read aloud a glowing tribute to the administration of President Harrison. Under President Harrison, the country had enjoyed more employment for workmen and wages had increased. The country was prosperous and the number of business failures had decreased. He would like the people would show by their votes on election day that they do not want any Democratic administration in 1888. He said that his attitude was altogether different to what it was to-day. He would like to have taken "Immunity Hall" into his possession. He said he would like to continue the speaker, who cry on to maintain the burden of this protective tariff. No, you don't hear them; but if you want to hear them, you go to England, to the English language. England only gave up protection when she became so rich that she thought she could dispense with it. The English people of the world. If you want to hear them, go to Cleveland and the Democratic free-trade party lauded to the skies read English language. He said that he would like to see the people of the world, the force of a prosperity we have never dreamed of, and yet the Democratic party wants us to give up a certainty and try an uncertainty. He said that he would like to see the force bill, ex-Governor Wise said the men who are crying out loudest against that measure are the men who are crying out loudest for it during the past twenty years by stuffing the ballot-boxes and corrupting election in the you ought to do it. There is every interest in New Jersey, from your associations, from your neighborhood--there is every reason why you should be a member of the Union League of New York and Pennsylvania, should take the initiative.

Gentlemen, I was especially assured that we would make a success here at all, and that I would be able to find it. I was to go on my feet I will not to speak more than two minutes and I will be glad to be on the ground on the third. I began to tender my warm thanks to the ladies of the Union League and to the gentlemen of the Union League Club for this reception.

Thanks to the Republicans of New Jersey, and to the friends of the Union League, who have given me in this place, and for the great promise we think we see here now in the future.

Shocking Double Tragedy.
KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23.—A double tragedy was enacted today in the hands of Alfred Fred Seiger in Kansas City. Kan. At 1 o'clock Mrs. Seiger shot and killed her four-year-old grandson, Frank Volckens, an old lady, sixty-five years of age, and was blind. She believed that he had been grossly abused at home and killed him to free him from his trouble. She was a mother-in-law of the late Frank Paucker, son of Frank Paucker, of Brooklyn, who four years ago shot his wife in a fit of jealousy, and, thinking he had killed her, committed suicide. Frank Paucker survived her wound and before she had recovered gave birth to the child which was later adopted by his uncle, Frank Volckens.

Registration Notes.

The number of voters registered at Cincinnati exceeded 70,000, more than 4,000 greater than ever before.

The registration books were closed at Brooklyn last night, with 151,698 names on the lists. In 1891 the number was 158,426; in 1890, 156,977, and in 1888, 154,104.

The registration figures in New York city are a sort of Chinese puzzle to the politicians. The total is 309,830. In 1885 there were registered 286,642, and last year the figures reached 261,523.
